Heyburn strike talks slated

HEYBURN — J. R. Simplot Co. officials and representatives of the American Federation of Grain Millers will meet Thursday in Boise to continue negotiations in the strike at Simplot's Heyburn plant.

Federal Mediator Jack Garvey requested the negotiating session. The meeting is set for 10 a.m. at the Owyhee Plaza, Boise.

Since the strike began May 2 negotiations have been limited to a single day, a session held May 8 in Burley.

Pneumonia fells Gen. Abrams

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the Army chief of staff, has been hospitalized since last week with pneumonia, the Army said Tuesday.

Abrams, 59, cut short a visit to Europe to return to Washington and was hospitalized last Thursday morning. The Army spokesman termed his case "a mild form of pneumonia."

Full withdrawal pressed

DAMASCUS (UPI) — The Soviet Union and Syria said tonight that Syria-Israeli troop disengagement must be followed immediately by steps to get an Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory.

The call came in a joint communique issued at the end of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's two-day visit to Damascus. Gromyko left for Moscow earlier today after two days of talks with President Hafez Assad.

Rush sworn as economic aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, in an unusual gesture, presided over the swearing in of his onetime law professor, Kenneth Rush, as his new counselor for economic policy.

In an Oval Office ceremony, Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. administered the oath to Rush, 64, who has been deputy secretary of state. Prior to that he was ambassador to West Germany and formerly was No. 2 man in the Defense Department.

Shirley Black on Disney board

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — Shirley Temple Black, the former child movie star, Tuesday became the first woman elected to the board of directors of Walt Disney Productions.

Mrs. Black, who now lives in the San Francisco area, has held several United Nations posts recently. She is currently also a member of the board of Del Monte Corp., the United Nations Association, the National Wildlife Federation and the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

New England elty-area evacuated

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (UPI) — Thousands of residents remained away from their homes this morning and officials kept electrical power shut off to a large section of New Britain where gasoline that leaked into the sewer system posed the threat of an explosion.

Wrong-lane I-80 crash near Jerome kills 2 men

JEROME — Two Magic Valley men were killed in a grinding head-on collision Tuesday as one of the victims drove down Interstate 80 in the wrong lane.

Thomas D. Platt, 33, Gooding, and Willard Peyton Teater, 51, Kimberly, were killed in the Tuesday afternoon crash near Jerome.

Idaho State Policeman William Walker said Teater was traveling the wrong way in the westbound lane at the time of the crash.

He said Platt, traveling west, had just pulled around other traffic in the right hand lane as Teater approached in the left lane but in the wrong direction and the two collided head on. Neither vehicle rolled over. No other vehicles were involved.

The accident occurred at 5:50 p.m.; two and three-quarters miles west of Jerome near the junction with old highway 79. Officers said Teater, who was traveling toward Twin Falls, had apparently driven into the wrong traffic lane, taking the off-ramp of the next bound lane instead of the on-ramp for the east bound section of the interstate.

Both vehicles, the pickup truck operated by Platt and the car operated by Teater, were estimated to be traveling 30 miles per hour at the time of impact. Officers said both drivers died instantly. Each was alone in his vehicle. Sheriff Elza Hall, Jerome, and a Jerome County deputy assisted Walker in the investigation.

Dam given priority over fish

By Ed Mitchell

BURLEY — Early testimony in a hearing today overwhelmingly supported lower water quality standards to expedite construction of a replacement dam at American Falls.

The hearing, called by the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS), was prompted by a petition from the American Falls Reservoir District. The district requested waiver or elimination of a water quality standard requiring a 99 per cent saturation level of dissolved oxygen in state waterways.

If the standard is not waived or eliminated, construction costs of the new dam will be prohibitive, according to the district.

In his testimony today, Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, president of the reservoir district, stepped environmental interests which have demanded that the "higher water quality standard be maintained."

Clinging need for quick replacement of the dam, Barker asked, "Is this good reason for other persons who reap the incidental benefits of American Falls Dam to demand a preservation of benefits they now enjoy and for a demand for increased benefits at no cost to them?"

"Unless the people of the state of Idaho join together to obtain an early replacement of American Falls Dam, all benefits could be lost," Barker said.

Dr. Richard Spless, an expert on trout production and water quality control from Drexel University, Philadelphia, Penn., said current trout production and growth rates could be continued under a lower water standard.

There would be "no advantage" to maintaining a higher standard, Spless said.

A letter from the Jerome Chamber of Commerce, supporting the district, was read into the hearing record.

The only opposition to the district's request in early stages of the hearing came from the Idaho League of Women Voters. The league said granting the variance would be "an extremely undesirable precedent."

An environmental impact study on the replacement dam, commissioned by Idaho Power Co., was "inadequate in the area of water quality," the league said.

SEN. FRANK CHURCH

chance at post

Sen. Church long shot panel chief

WASHINGTON — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has a long shot chance of becoming chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in January.

As a result of the defeat of Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., — the present chairman — in Tuesday's primary election, that post will become vacant next January.

(Election roundup, p. 9)

Next in line under the prevailing seniority system is Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., who is now chairman of the Senate Banking Committee. Senators are not allowed to hold two chairmanships. If Sparkman stays on as banking chairman, the foreign relations chairmanship would pass to Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., present Senate majority leader.

But should Mansfield wish to remain as majority leader, then Church would become chairman of the foreign relations committee. (Continued on p. 2)

Golan pullback accord reached

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced today that Israel and Syria, working through Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, have agreed to a troop disengagement in the Golan Heights.

Nixon said the agreement would be signed Friday by the two sides.

The President called it a "major diplomatic achievement" and praised Kissinger for his tenacity in pressing for an agreement when at times it appeared negotiations would break down.

Nixon cautioned that in spite of the two cease-fires negotiated by Kissinger did not mean that all the roadblocks had been removed toward permanent peace in the Middle East. But he said:

"This particular agreement, together with the agreement that was reached earlier on disengagement of Syrian and Egyptian forces now paves the way for progress in Geneva (for permanent peace)."

The President, in a statement lasting only about four minutes, said that with this new agreement, "the prospects for reaching a permanent settlement are better than they have been at any time in the past 25 years."

Announcement of the agreement came on Kissinger's 32nd day of shuttling back and forth between Jerusalem and Damascus. Israeli sources said in Jerusalem a breakthrough came Tuesday when Israel dropped its insistence that Syria guarantee against Arab guerrilla infiltration.

Israeli newspapers said the United States removed one of the final barriers by agreeing to support Israel politically in event it retaliated against Arab guerrilla attacks launched from Syria territory.

Syria refused to give direct guarantees against guerrilla infiltration.

In Jerusalem, Israeli radio said planes already were standing by to exchange prisoners captured by the two sides during the October, 1973, war.

Despite a cease-fire negotiated by Kissinger between Israeli and Egyptian forces in January, there have been exchanges of gunfire between Israeli and Syrian units along the Golan Heights frontier for 79 consecutive days.

The agreement is patterned after the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement agreement completed by Kissinger in January, which included a cease-fire line, a buffer zone between the opposing forces, a thinning out of weapons and military zones on both sides of the buffer, and a United Nations force to police it.

Governor appoints McCollum

TWIN FALLS — Joseph D. McCollum, 66, Twin Falls, will succeed the late Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, in the Idaho legislature. Lincoln died May 13 after suffering a heart attack.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus picked McCollum Tuesday to fill Lincoln's unexpired term. McCollum was one of three nominees recommended to Andrus by county and district Republican Party committees.

(Although not ready formally to announce his candidacy, McCollum said he is planning to run for Lincoln's seat in the fall elections.)

He said he was grateful but not beholden to Andrus for the appointment. "I'm on the other side of the fence," he said.

McCollum said he has no particular issue of concern he would like to deal with as a legislator. "I didn't necessarily seek this thing out, but I don't have anything against the state," he said.

McCollum is general manager of Simplot Soil Builders in the Magic Valley, owns a farm himself and has a long background in local Republican Party politics.

He was appointed to the State Board of Education by Gov. Don Samuelson in 1962. He was serving as board president when Andrus took office and, reappointed by the Governor, served two more years.

McCollum also served 16 years as a precinct committeeman and also served as deputy chairman of the Twin Falls County Republican Party. He was elected District 23 party chairman in 1962. He has served on the Republican Party's State Executive Committee and was the first Republican district chairman for the entire Magic Valley.

Speaking of his appointment McCollum said: "I'm pleased and I'm grateful for those who have expressed and are continuing to express their support. I hope I can vindicate these people who have shown me support and do the job that they expect."

Tape report due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A full report on what technicians believe caused the arc-dis of 18-1/2 megawatts from one of President Nixon's Watergate tapes probably will be made public Friday, it was announced today.

In a preliminary report Jan. 15, a court-appointed panel of six audio experts said the gap was caused by perhaps as many as nine separate erase and re-record operations, all done manually. The final report is expected to detail the scientific tests that prompted that conclusion.

US indicators drop in April

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's index of leading business indicators dropped 0.7 per cent in April, the first monthly decline in the economic barometer. This year, the Commerce Department said today.

A decline in the length of the average work week from 40.4 to 39.5 hours contributed the most to the April falloff. The decline in the index was the first since a 1.6 per cent drop in December.

The index has been moving erratically in recent months, belying its reputation as an accurate forecaster of future economic trends. Broad swings in the index are supposed to foreshadow similar shifts in the overall economy but some economists feel that the unusually heavy inflation may have tarnished its historic ability to call economic turns in advance.

In addition to the work week figure, two more of the eight indicators available for the preliminary April report declined — stock prices and building permits.

Watergate at a glance

By United Press International

President Nixon's lawyers will oppose Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's effort to get an early Supreme Court ruling on whether Nixon must give Watergate information to the courts. While House officials said the normal appeals route through a circuit appeals court should not be short-cut.

Jaworski told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica there is no evidence the White House conspired to misuse the Internal Revenue Service against political enemies. He asked Sirica to reconsider an earlier ruling keeping information on that subject secret.

Democrats and Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee voted in separate meetings for subpoenas against Nixon for tapes requested but not yet received. The Senate voted to subpoena a committee member $400,000, bringing the panel's budget to $1 million.

Francis X. Carroll, former U.S. representative of the Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farm of Allentown, Pa., pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to knowingly taking part in an illegal $25,000 contribution by the co-op to President Nixon's re-election campaign. He was sentenced to 30 days unsupervised probation.

Rabin announces new Israeli cabinet

(C) New York Times Service. JERUSALEM — Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin announced Tuesday the formation of a new Israeli cabinet composed of ministers who are younger and expected to be generally more dovish in foreign policy matters than the outgoing government of Premier Golda Meir.

The new government will be headed by the 52-year-old Rabin and will include Yigal Alon, 55, Deputy premier and foreign minister, and Shimon Peres, 51, as minister of defense.

Missing from the new cabinet will be four of the key ministers in the outgoing government: Mrs. Meir, Minister of Defense; Moshe Dayan, Finance Minister; Pinchas Sapir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

With Mrs. Meir and Dayan gone, and the hard-line National Religious Party missing from the coalition, the new Rabin government seems likely to be more flexible regarding accommodation with the Arab states.

However, Rabin, who is frequently described by his aides as a hawk on military defense and a dove on peace negotiations, is likely to proceed cautiously, at least at the beginning, he seems likely to pursue a negotiating course similar to that of the Meir government.

The premier-designate presented his 19-member cabinet to Israeli President Ezer Weizman on Tuesday, an hour before his four-year-old mandate to form a new government was to expire. The final decisions on several key ministries had been made only a few hours earlier.

In brief, extemporaneous remarks at the President's official residence here, Rabin described his new cabinet as a government of "continuity and change."

"Continuity, in the sense that we hope to continue to build on the achievements of Meir government," he said, "and change, in the sense that we will strive for new approaches in the fields of security and social problems."

The new government will be presented for approval to the Knesset, later this week. Mrs. Meir will remain in office until Secretary of State Kissinger completes the current round of negotiations between Israel and Syria on a troop separation agreement.

If an understanding is reached in the next 24 to 36 hours, Mrs. Meir probably will present it to the parliament as her last official act. If it is delayed beyond that, however, Rabin is expected to assume power.

Both his cabinet and the 61-seat coalition government he has painstakingly assembled over the last month of political negotiations seem assured of winning parliamentary approval.

Water plan outlined

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said Tuesday the best way to save Idaho's water was development of sound reclamation projects.

He told the Twin Falls Exchange Club Idaho reclamation projects should be investigated that will "put our water to beneficial use."

"This will strengthen our opposition to schemes to divert Idaho water outside the Columbia River basin," he said.

Hansen said expanded agricultural production will not only be a boon to Idaho, but will help meet the growing demand for food in this country and by overseas customers.

He said the brightest spot in the U.S. crop picture has been the nation's agricultural export. He added that last year $9.3 million more in farm products were exported than imported.

TV station gets SLA message

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A three-page statement purportedly from the "Symbionse Liberation Army" was delivered to a television station Tuesday night, the FBI said today.

The hand written statement contained three pages of what the FBI called political rhetoric condemning the murder and genocide of oppressed people and was signed "a friend and supporter of the SLA revolution."

Three men, apparently involved as intermediaries, brought the statement to KABC-TV, the FBI said. Agents said they were not greatly interested in the statement because it appeared to contain no new leads in the hunt for the SLA members still at large — Patricia Hearst, and William and Emily Harris. Although there have been no good new leads in this area, an FBI spokesman said Tuesday, the search is still centered on the Los Angeles region.

"We have no indication they are elsewhere, so we are concentrating our search," the spokesman said.

The Harries are charged with 19 state and federal offenses, and Miss Hearst with 20, including kidnapping, robbery, assault and weapons laws violations.

Church moving up?

If Church becomes foreign relations chairman, he would be the second Idahoan to hold that office. The first was the late Benjamin J. Williamson Borah, who served in the Senate from 1907 until his death in 1940. Borah headed the foreign relations committee from 1945 until 1957.

Sparkman, who reportedly is in no hurry to decide whether to keep his present chairmanship or succeed Fulbright, has disclaimed most of the latter's positions in recent years.

Sparkman has been a consistent supporter of President Nixon's military budgets and foreign policy, and a long-time backer of foreign aid. A Sparkman aide said that "Sparkman has a 'plenty of time to decide.'"

Congressional Quarterly reported earlier this month the banking associations had contributed heavily to Fulbright's campaign, just means of keeping Sparkman at the head of the banking committee, where he has been a friend to banking interests.

The same publication reported Sparkman had made up his mind to switch to foreign relations, but has said publicly he has not decided.

AG hopeful eyes changes

Wednesday, May 29, 1974 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 3

TWIN FALLS — Tim Hopkins, Republican candidate for state attorney general, believes the attorney general's office is in sore need of reorganization.

The office currently is not fulfilling its obligations to the state, he said in an interview Tuesday.

The problem, he said, is that it is "serving as a training ground for young lawyers" instead of keeping its professional, experienced men. With the average tenure somewhat under two years, younger lawyers often use the office for basic training and then move on to private practice, he said.

The result, Hopkins said, frequently is the state's having to hire private lawyers for advice on cases "too weighty" for the attorney general's office to handle.

Several times the office has had to ask the legislature for extra funds beyond its $547,000 budget to pay for these private defenses, he said.

Hopkins believes that by keeping its experienced lawyers the attorney general's office can handle all its cases without the additional funding. "I think we could live in the office with fewer lawyers at the $10,000 a year level and benefit with more lawyers in the office at the $15,000 to $20,000 a year level," he said.

By offering salaries competitive with private firms and including most of the office's staff in the state merit system, Hopkins believes he could encourage professionalism in the office. The state merit system provides for non-political hiring and firing of personnel. This reorganization "would be my first priority," he said.

TIM HOPKINS

Hopkins would also emphasize Idaho's right to control its own navigable waterways.

If the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers does not voluntarily withdraw from its assertion of jurisdiction over Lake Coeur d'Alene, the state should take action challenging the Corp's position, Hopkins said.

The issue is regional, but has wide implications, he said. The important question, he said, is whether the state or federal government has the right to control navigable waterways. In southern Idaho, he said, the issue will be the "federal government's temptation to move our water somewhere else."

As attorney general, he said, he would recommend the legal action necessary to help insure the state's right to control its own water resources.

Hopkins would also emphasize the state's anti-trust and consumer protection laws as attorney general.

"There are far more anti-trust violations that go on in this state than most people imagine," he said.

Without passing judgment on the matter, he said the recent coffee price boost to 25 cents a cup by almost all Twin Falls restaurants at once is "the sort of thing that we are talking about."

"People are not informed enough" about the state's consumer protection laws, he said. One way to bring better communication between people and the attorney general's office would be to orient the county agents' home, extension and home-economist branches to discussing these matters with consumers. Also, Hopkins said, he is talking about consumer protection at every point in his campaign.

Press doing better than Nixon thinks at its job

WASHINGTON — In an interview with this correspondent two weeks ago, President Nixon several times spoke critically of the press. A couple of days after that interview, the two Washington papers carried a "leaked" story that once again cast the President in a contemptuous light. The conjunction of events merits reflection.

In our interview, Nixon complained of one-sided coverage of illegal or improper campaign activities in the past. He said, "we never were able to get your colleagues to understand" the difference between mere heckling and actual violence.

The President several times spoke acridly of "leaked" news. He denounced publication by columnist Jack Anderson of minutes of a top security meeting on India and Pakistan. He deplored the hero-worship accorded Daniel Ellsberg in the matter of the Pentagon Papers. "Those who will not leak material are pilloried or paid no attention to; those who do leak material are praised. It's turned topsy-turvy. That's wrong. And one day some of your colleagues in the press — it will take time, maybe ten years from now — they will look back on these times, and they will say, 'I wonder: Did we have a double standard? I wonder, was it good for the country to say that confidential material should be leaked and those who did it should be rewarded rather than punished?'"

Nixon said that "90 per cent" of the Washington press corps is philosophically opposed to his position. "Basically, they're ultra-liberal and I am conservative. It would be infinitely popular with some of our friends out there, and a lot of the heat would go out of Watergate, too. But I will never do that."

On the morning of Thursday, May 14, the Washington Post broke a page-one story based upon the leak of a confidential transcript from the House Judiciary Committee. The Star-News followed with its own story a few hours later. It appeared from the transcript that on Sept. 15, 1972, the President had remarked to H. R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III that the Post "is going to have damnable, damnable problems... They have a television station. And they're going to have to get it renewed."

When Haldeman mentioned that the Post owned a radio station, too, the President asked if its license also were coming up for renewal. "The game," he said, "has to be played awfully rough." Of the Post's attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, the President said: "I think we are going to fix the (characterization deleted). Believe me, we are going to. We've got to, because he's a bad man."

A few observations:

Nixon is on sound ground when he denounces the "double standard" applied by major instruments of the press. This double standard exists, though the good men resist it. There is no denying an ideological bias at top levels of the media. The leaking last week of the Sept. 15 transcript buttresses the President's objection to giving the House committee's collection additional tapes.

But what of the public interest? It is in the public interest, beyond any doubt whatever, to learn that the President of the United States once threatened to use the powers of his office through the Federal Communications Commission, to create "damnable, damnable problems" for a newspaper he despises. Such a threat is contemptible.

It implies a state of mind, and it implies a view of the presidential office, that the people are entitled to know about.

With all its sins and shortcomings and its own abuses of power, the press, I submit, is doing better than the President believes at its indispensable and sometimes dirty job.

Missing flags

This is a tale of two flags. It's a sad one to relate. Their origin is unknown but their purpose was to demonstrate patriotism on the street of Twin Falls. They were placed each holiday by Exchange Club members, the last time in front of a couple of business firms on Memorial Day.

Before the day was over, the flags were gone — taken for some reason known only to those who took them.

Not many years ago, the American flag was an object of great respect by the nation's citizens. Proper use of the flag was emphasized and the person who showed disrespect was regarded at the least as an outcast and at worst as someone highly suspected of treasonable activities.

Unfortunately, in recent years the level of respect accorded the U. S. flag has declined sharply — another adverse reaction to the Vietnam war. So it has come to pass that the American flag, with its colors and symbols obviously derived from its most offensive to Americans who still hold their nation — for all its faults — and its symbols in high regard.

Therefore, the theft of a couple of flags is an action which leaves the person contemplating the act uncertain whether to condemn as unpatriotic the perpetrator or only to feel regret that whoever committed the act knew no better.

One can only hope two flags taken on a holiday dedicated to remembering the nation's war dead were used for some patriotic purpose.

Negativism stalls bicentennial plans

Salt Lake Tribune

America's bicentennial celebration in 1976 is less than two years away. But according to the man who heads the federal government's effort to shape the event, most people don't seem to have much enthusiasm for the forthcoming festivities.

That's not necessarily the case in Utah, where the Legislature appropriated $6.5 million toward construction of a concert hall in Salt Lake County and $1.5 million for projects in other parts of the state.

The Utah Bicentennial Commission has been active and seems to enjoy considerable public support. But nationally, partly because of inefficiency, incompetence and politics which afflicted the original 75-member commission, the picture is not so rosy.

As might be expected, Watergate and the resulting disparagement of government is assigned a good part of the blame for a general disinterest in what has been achieved in the eight years since planning began.

We share the anxiety of John W. Warner, newly appointed chief executive of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, successor to the original bicentennial commission which couldn't handle the job.

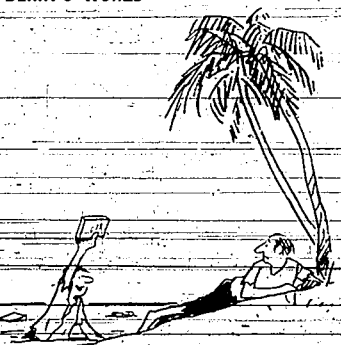

It is difficult to get excited about what is essentially a flag-waving observance when a large part of the population is dissatisfied with the way America is being run.

Similarly, it is not easy to reaffirm dedication to basic principles when those principles are repeatedly ignored or challenged by those chosen to uphold them.

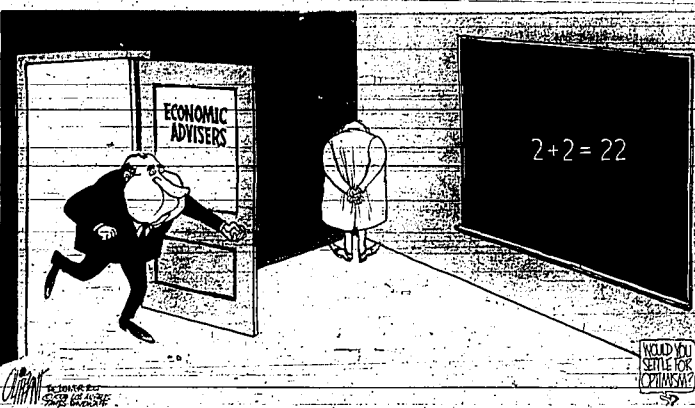

"The biggest handicap that I face is overcoming this residual negativism that's out there," Mr. Warner explains. Mr. Warner looks for things to get worse before they get better but he is counting on a period of post-Watergate remorse or relief or a mixture of the two to create a groundswell of bicentennial fervor that will assure success of the 200th anniversary festivities.

The hoped-for patriotic backlash could materialize in time to save the big party. But if the present pace of Watergate and impeachment events continues, there won't be sufficient time afterward to recoup the lost ardor and apply it to the job at hand. Unless attitudes change quickly the bicentennial celebration promises to offer all the morbid attractions of a wake but few of the joys.

Grated MIGs may be warning to US negotiators

WASHINGTON — Sovietologists here now suspect the appearance of a MIG-23 in a Soviet wharf in the Black Sea may be a signal for the U.S. to watch its step in delicate Mideast negotiations.

Spotted by high-flying American cameras two weeks ago, the grated MIG-23 — perhaps the world's most sophisticated combat aircraft — could be destined for the Syrian port of Latakia. What makes that prospect so alarming is that Moscow has never cleared the MIG-23 for use outside the Soviet Union itself, with one apparent exception: East Germany, where the super-sound MIG-23 has been tested from Soviet bases by Soviet pilots.

When first spotted by U.S. satellites, officials here feared the half-dozen aircraft would be packed on a freighter, with Syria the likely destination. Now they are not so sure. With

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's negotiations for a Syrian-Israeli settlement near a climax, the Kremlin may be using the grated aircraft to warn the U.S. give Moscow equal credit with the U.S. or there won't be any settlement.

EVANS & NOVAK

In that case, the Syrian-Israeli mini-war could blow into a major war, with the Soviet-managed MIG-23 thrown into "battle" as a dangerous element of escalation.

With the treasury breathing sighs of relief, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas is now taking the position this is no time for a personal income tax cut.

Democratic leaders in Congress are pushing an "election-year" tax reduction for wage earners, and Senate passage is nearly certain. With heavy Democratic support in the House, chances of final approval may depend on Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Mills, who deplores predetermined rigid positions, has been enigmatic about the tax cut. He would support it, he has said, if necessary to forestall a recession. Nevertheless, Secretary of the Treasury William Simon has privately expressed confidence that in the end Mills would drop his foot.

Simon's confidence proved justified last week when Mills quietly put out the word, he is against tax reduction now. The reason is inflation. Mills essentially agrees with New York business economist Edith Janeway, that a tax cut would push the rate of inflation up to 20 per cent.

Federal Energy Chief John Sawhill, whose decision to join the Common Cause infuriated middle-level White House staffers, has quietly dropped his membership.

When asked at a breakfast with Republican Senators two weeks ago whether he was a member of John Gardner's lobby, Sawhill replied with a smile: "I am not presently a member of Common Cause."

That satisfied the conservative Republican who asked the question. Sawhill did join Common Cause in April 23, when Gardner visited his office. We reported that fact April 28, creating outrage at the White House.

Distrust aggravated

(c) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — Last Thursday evening, presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler, materialized outside the West Wing of the White House to button-hole a few newsmen still on the premises.

Ziegler wanted to blast the House Judiciary Committee for "leaking" what he called an incomplete sentence, which cast the President in a bad light.

The sentence was taken from a recording by President Nixon, summing up his recollection of March 21, 1973, the day White House counsel John W. Dean elaborated on the role of White House aides in the Watergate cover-up. As leaked, the sentence read: "As far as the day was concerned, it was uneventful."

Ziegler indignantly pointed out the actual statement by Nixon was, "As far as the day was concerned, it was uneventful, except for the talk with Dean."

The leaked version, Ziegler charged, was "an example of the distortion and piecemeal presentation of this material in stories that ran across the country... leaving all the negative connotations."

At the same time, to other reporters at hand, Ziegler disclosed that the Soviet parliamentarians who had visited the President earlier in the day had delivered a message from Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

On Friday, at the usual mid-day news briefing by deputy press secretary Gerald Warren, reporters angrily criticized the ad hoc, impromptu, apparently impulsive performance by Ziegler.

The episode pointed up the disarray at the White House, which has turned the normal mode of communication into a haphazard, catch-as-catch-can operation, which badly serves the White House and the President. But to many newsmen, it was a disarray for the standard procedures for communicating through the news media to the public.

The relationship between the White House, news editors and correspondents assigned to cover the President has steadily deteriorated in recent weeks. Warren has borne the brunt of criticism because he is the only publicly available official but he often seems the victim of omissions and misunderstandings.

PETER LISAGOR

For example, when the President departed for a Memorial Day weekend in Key Biscayne, Fla., Warren could not say when Nixon would make a speech on the economy. He could only imply that it would be a radio address, but beyond that he could not say or would not go. He also indicated the President might make a second radio speech, dealing with Memorial Day itself. Even the President's departure for Florida was not conveyed, on the usual off-the-record basis, to some veteran White House reporter. As a result, they came to work totally unprepared for the trip.

What it adds up to was an aggravated distrust. It is not clear whether it represented merely confusion and disarray within the White House itself or a deliberate effort to discommodore or inconvenience reporters. In either case, it served the President badly.

"I Told you to Put It in Reverse!"

European cooperation conference hits sidetrack

(c) N.Y. Times Service

GENEVA — Something seems to have gone wrong with the 35-nation conference on security and cooperation in Europe.

"This has been meeting intermittently for 18 months with the idea of more or less formalizing a defense between Communist and non-Communist blocs facing each other on the continent."

The Russians, who urged the meeting for years before it began, suddenly reversed their field. Meanwhile several Western participants appear to be slowing.

CSCE, as it is known in diplomatic jargon, is part of the package in which West and East are trying to settle disputes by acknowledging the modern of communication into a haphazard, catch-as-catch-can operation, which badly and bilateral trade above all between the USA and the USSR. All are related to the objective of detente and to compromising the needs and desires of each bloc, subject to the agreement of neutrals in-between.

C. L. SULZBERGER

At CSCE, which includes the United States and Canada, every European government except Albania is represented. Many are nonaligned.

The West was reluctant to concede "inviolability" of frontiers, only to agree they could not be altered by violent means. It didn't wish to "frustrate" an eventual peaceful unification of Germany, for example, Russia was balky about modifying its political system to suit Western concepts of freedom.

Yet progress snailed forward. Brezhnev wanted CSCE to wind up its Geneva phase successfully this spring to enable him to push for a summit in Helsinki before August, where all 35 of government would put their seal on accord.

But Brezhnev hasn't achieved what he hoped. The USA's Soviet trade program is in trouble with Congress. MBFR is in stalemate. SALT is moving slowly. CSCE hasn't yet stamped its okay on Soviet mumpkinship after World War II and it embarrasses Moscow to hear all the talk here on freedom of movement and opinion when it is having trouble with dissidents at home.

Yet West European participants are fed up with Soviet stonewalling on "basket three" as the section on human rights is called because of its agenda number. However, since the negotiators returned here late last month from a long Easter recess, the Soviet attitude has become noticeably cautious.

What has gone wrong? Brezhnev is committed to a "detente" in the West, possibly to strengthen his rear while facing a hostile China. But maybe the Soviet leader is worried that detente takes too long to achieve. Meanwhile he sees Washington gaining influence in the Middle East. Moscow's expense and holding up the promise of commercial goodies. Or maybe Pompidou's death, Brandt's political demise and the possible disappearance of Nixon have suddenly changed the picture. Russian chiefs have always been used to dealing with individual foreign peers. Now these have either vanished or are sliding into limbo.

Does Brezhnev have an embarrassed feeling that his hands are outstretched and there's nothing around to shake it?

Strike report bias charged

Editor, Times-News:

It is time for a Chicano to speak up against ignorant, bias, stereotyping, and stupid remarks like the one printed in the South Idaho Press on May 20, 1974.

I'm tired of reading fabricated lies or interpreting pictures that make La Raza look like the underdogs.

My feelings are shared by all of the Mexican-Americans who are on strike or are being unfairly employed. Such remarks are narrow minded and lack knowledge of this verbal utterances.

Not only does the spokesman of the Independent Union contradict himself but he goes on to prove his complete lack of knowledge of La Raza.

He says "Some of the Mexican (?) people are backing the Grain Millers." But I think it's fear more than anything else.

I strongly question his statement. What do they fear? Is he immune to malnutrition, creditors or unemployment? I also question his English as the word Mexican. Are the people citizens of Mexico? Or does he use the word in a derogatory sense. The spokesman goes on to generalize and stereotype by saying, "Because the way I hear it, they're destitute some of them. It's just terrible."

Letters

Not only does this statement make no sense at all, the manner in which he says it is incomprehensible, fictitious and only hearsay. It is a statement very much like a person, who had no other means to display his great malfunctioning mind at work, that would say something like that.

Destitution is found in all of those in need of food, money, and hope, and that includes the spokesman of the Independent Union. Otherwise, he would have no reason to be working where he is.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

For this, no 'safe' intervals

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a male transfer vaginitis from an infected female to a noninfected female? If so, there is a certain amount of time between sexual partners that would be considered "safe"?

Please answer as soon as possible. — L. B.

Can't tell from your initials whether you are male or female, but if you're in such a hurry, the quick answer is no, there's no "safe" interval between partners.

And now to explain why not. Vaginitis is an inclusive term which can mean any sort of inflammation of the vagina. That includes venereal diseases. The venereal diseases are transmitted primarily through sexual contact; there are other forms of vaginitis which can be acquired without sexual contact. Or may be transmitted either with or without it.

The commonest vaginitis that is not usually considered V.D. is trichomoniasis, an infection from a micro-organism known as a protozoan. Although this causes a discharge and irritation in the female, the male can carry the same infection yet have no symptoms. He is totally unaware that he has it.

A wife may, for example, be treated and have the trichomoniasis entirely cured. But if her husband (or other sexual partner) unknowingly has the infection, he will promptly give it back to her. Or to some other sexual partner.

That, in fact, is a continuing problem—among—doctors treating trichomoniasis. Too often the husband insists that there's nothing wrong with him and he refuses to be treated when the wife is being cured.

But there is no "safe" interval between sexual partners. He will continue to have the infection and be able to transmit it. (Remember, though, that trichomoniasis can be acquired other than by sexual contact.)

The opposite situation, we are learning, can be true of gonorrhea. The male usually (although not always) develops gonorrhea after three to five days after catching gonorrhea, and knows he needs to be treated. Unfortunately, many (but not all, of course) females can have gonorrhea without having any symptoms. Such ladies can be a hidden source of infection to their gentleman partners.

In the case of syphilis, a man (same is true for women) may not be aware of the infection until the chancre (sore) appears, and that may not occur for several weeks.

To sum up: if one is going to play the field, the only reliable protection against passing disease organisms in either direction—the condom, properly used.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In the wintertime the skin on my legs becomes extremely dry so they itch till I scratch them—I've used hand lotion, body lotion, baby oil, etc., but finally used castor oil on them as I had a bottle on hand. This worked better than all the lotions put together. My legs do sting right after I put it on but it works wonders. What is your opinion of using it? — Mrs. M.L.

Can't see any harm in it. If it works, it works. Don't know as I'd ever heard of it for that purpose before.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long should one wait between X-rays? I had one two months ago for arthritis or bursitis in my shoulder, but now am changing doctors and don't want to have it X-rayed again if the time is too short — Mrs. A.A.

There's no minimum time required between X-rays, and I would say it is obvious that your new doctor will obtain an X-ray in order to help you. So you can just go ahead without worry on that score.

Chirac follows youthful French mold

By United Press International

The appointment of Jacques Chirac, 41, as France's new premier follows the promise of newly inaugurated President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing to create a youthful government.

But to some European diplomats, Chirac is an aggressive and headstrong man who stands for the old France, the Gaullist era when as agriculture minister, he rarely agreed on anything with France's European Common Market partners, and the United States.

During a marathon farm ministers' price-setting session in Luxembourg in 1973, Chirac accused West German Agriculture Minister Josef Ertl of being more interested in "ostpolitik" than the Common Market and of selling out Europe to the Americans.

Said Ertl after Chirac's outburst, "He should go see a psychoanalyst." The two ministers later smiled and shook hands for photographers.

Chirac's second gulf in the Common Market in Brussels came when the market's executive committee proposed that member nations limit sugar production. Chirac called the proposal "ridiculous" and charged that the French member of the committee was derelict in his nationalistic duties for agreeing to this.

Since commissioners are duty-bound to act as Europeans and ignore pressures from their own countries, Commission President Francois Xavier Ortoli — himself French — reprimanded Chirac.

In his latest performance Jan. 14, he demanded an increase in beef support prices to aid French farmers. When other ministers balked, he walked out and returned to Paris.

Friends explain his behavior as passionate devotion to "my farmers." Others explain his outbursts as loyalty to his mentor, Pompidou.

Chirac won election to parliament in 1967 from the Sarthe region. Soon he got an appointment as secretary of state in the finance ministry under Giscard d'Estaing and later became chief parliamentary liaison for Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

In 1972, Premier Pierre Messmer made him minister of agriculture and in 1973 minister of interior.

An outspoken opponent of Chaban-Delmas, he tried to get Messmer to run for president after Pompidou's death. When that move failed, he threw his support to Giscard d'Estaing.

Tall, with dark hair thinning to a bald spot, Chirac is called "unfashionable" by the Paris press for wearing "suits of an uncertain cut and overcoats the color of gray coal. He wore undershirts and scarves no matter what the weather."

One columnist said his "mind is like an operating table — no doubts, ferment, there, no anxieties taint it." The minister keeps to his task 15 hours a day, telling colleagues, "You are perfectly right — but don't be mistaken."

Le Point Magazine described him as "ideal to any disagreement, unswayed by any new ideas, suspicious of any innovation."

Chirac in the 1950s signed an appeal in Stockholm against atomic bombs. In the 1960s, his superior officers said this showed he was a Communist — and he won an officer's commission only after appeals. Of his Stockholm signature, he has said it was a "mistake."

Born Nov. 29, 1932, in Paris, Chirac has a love of French cuisine, antiques, and archeology and once rose at 5 A.M. to write an article on a church in the Corrèze region.

Chirac attended a summer session at Harvard University in the United States after graduating from the School of Political Studies in Paris.

The fact that now both the president and premier of France speak fluent English is rare in French history.

Spot leaps desperately to escape electric shock through a shock collar. If he doesn't jump fast enough, the researcher shocks him by remote control and herolls and howls in pain. Lady is being electric shocked too. But she is too terrified to leap. So she suffers the shock in frozen silence.

Why is the researcher electric shocking Spot and Lady? Because that's what he was educated and trained to do.

Students at institutions all across the country are receiving the same kind of science education and training in medical schools, Universities, Colleges, Hospitals, Primate centers. Even in veterinary schools. Students can earn their Ph.D's and other academic titles by electric shocking animals and tormenting and injuring them in other ways. Congress votes millions of dollars annually to help pay for this education in cruelty, but then is unable or afraid to tell the public how the money is really used.

Only an aroused citizenry can stop this secrecy in government and this abuse of animals that has been masquerading as education for more than 60 years. Ulster strike ends; coalition government out

BELFAST (UPI) — The Protestant Ulster Workers' Council (UWC) today called off its 15-day general strike that paralyzed the province and forced the collapse of the first Northern Ireland government to share power with minority Roman Catholics.

A statement issued by the council called for the immediate restoration of all public services and the reopening of shops. Other workers should return to their jobs in orderly phases, it said.

The Ulster Workers' Council (UWC), which threatened to shut down all organized life in the province if its demands were not met, reviewed the new situation today and announced light industry workers would go back at their jobs this week.

Workers in heavy industry, including the mills and shipyards, will return to work next Monday, the council said. But even before the announcement, Belfast was settling back toward normal life after a night of street dancing and blazing bonfires in celebration of the fall of the executive council of Protestants and Catholics that had ruled the province for five months.

A skeleton bus service eased some of the transportation problems. Gas was switched on, and the supply of electricity was raised from 25 to 40 percent. Sewage workers, water workers and grave diggers were back at their jobs.

There was an adequate supply of bread and milk.

Although the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) said its forces were on the alert to protect Catholic districts against attack, the city was calm.

The collapse of the coalition appeared to be a setback for moderate Catholics and Protestants attempting to end bloodshed rocking the province for nearly five years.

The Ulster Workers' Council, which called the 15-day-old province-wide walkout, eased the "total strike" today, letting workers provide a minimum of electrical power, cooking gas, bread and milk.

In London, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson summoned a meeting of cabinet ministers to discuss the crisis. Political sources said he would probably call Parliament into session for a crisis meeting.

Chief Minister Brian Faulkner, a moderate Protestant, led his followers out of the coalition, saying the Executive lacked popular support.

Strike protests bombing

BRESCIA, Italy (UPI) — Schools and theaters closed and workers throughout Italy went on strike for four hours today to protest a "deadly extremist bombing."

In Milan, young leftists attacked right-wing targets with rocks and firebombs.

Six persons died Tuesday when a timebomb exploded in the main square of the northern city during an anti-Fascist rally. Ninety-four others were injured, and one remained in critical condition today.

Police said about 20 youths invaded a Milan coffee bar frequented by rightists, destroyed it and set it on fire.

An hour later firebombs shattered windows of the Milan office of Beria, the Spanish airline, and started a fire that was quickly controlled by firemen.

About 50 youths carrying red flags slung another attack on the offices of the right-wing weekly Candido. Police said the youths hurled stones and fought with Carabinieri (National Police) before dispersing. Three policemen were injured.

More than 30,000 persons gathered at the Colosseum in Rome at the start of a nationwide general strike demanding government action against extremists.

The demonstrators marched behind the Italian tricolor and red flags at half staff to a rally in the square in front of the Basilica of St. John Lateran where the crowd swelled to at least 100,000, police said.

Transportation was halted and schools, offices and shops closed from 8 a.m. to noon.

Graham standing by Nixon

(c) New York Times Service. NEW YORK — Billy Graham has called his reading of the transcripts of President Nixon's Watergate conversations "a profoundly disturbing and disappointing experience," but added that, as Nixon's friend, he has "no intention of forsaking him now."

Graham, who in the past has offered only infrequent public comment on the Watergate affair, made those remarks in a statement issued from his home in Montreal, N.C.

In part, Graham declared that "one cannot but deplore the moral tone implied in these papers." It was not clear, however, whether his comments referred solely to the use of what he termed "objectionable language" in the transcripts, or to substantive matters related in the conversations.

A spokesman for the Baptist clergyman said today that he was traveling and not available to add to the original statement.

In an apparent response to a recent defense of Nixon's use of profanity by a Jesuit priest who is a salaried member of the President's staff, Graham said:

"I should not take the name of the Lord by God in vain is a commandment which has not been suspended, regardless of any need to release tensions."

High court limits class action suits

(C) New York Times Service. WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court rules Tuesday class action on behalf of large group of people must be thrown out of court unless all those people receive notice of the lawsuit and the person who brings it pays for that notice.

The decision will almost certainly make it more difficult to use the class action, a relatively new legal weapon for people with a small individual stake in a large important issue common to many others.

Under the Supreme Court ruling, which was unanimous as to its general conclusions, it will be much more difficult in the future to get the courts to accept a class action in environmental, civil rights and anti-trust cases that affect large numbers of people seriously but do not touch any one of them extravagantly.

The majority held that federal court rules clearly required notifying all identifiable parties to a class action, so that each of them can bring in their own attorney or drop out if they prefer not to be bound by the outcome.

The high court ordered dismissed a class action brought eight years ago by a group of stockholders who buy less than 100 shares at a time. They charged that two brokers who handle virtually all this "odd-lot" business were joining the anti-trust laws and charging excessive fees.

The vote on the case was 6 to 3, with Associate Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall signing a partial dissent. Their quarrel with the majority was relatively small, however, centering on an argument that the particular case could be reshaped rather than dismissed.

The lawsuit was brought by Morton Eisen, who contended only that he had lost $70 through excessive odd-lot brokerage fees, but he sued on behalf of a class of some six million other small investors, of whom at least 25 million were directly reachable through mailing lists.

A federal district court estimated that it would cost about $25,000 to notify all these people, and one of the principal issues in the case became the question of who was responsible for this expense, $580 or the two brokerage houses — Carlisle & Jacquelin and DeCapote, Doremus — or perhaps, all three.

The high court ordered dismissed a class action brought eight years ago by a group of stockholders who buy less than 100 shares at a time. They charged that two brokers who handle virtually all this "odd-lot" business were joining the anti-trust laws and charging excessive fees.

The vote on the case was 6 to 3, with Associate Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall signing a partial dissent. Their quarrel with the majority was relatively small, however, centering on an argument that the particular case could be reshaped rather than dismissed.

The lawsuit was brought by Morton Eisen, who contended only that he had lost $70 through excessive odd-lot brokerage fees, but he sued on behalf of a class of some six million other small investors, of whom at least 25 million were directly reachable through mailing lists.

A federal district court estimated that it would cost about $25,000 to notify all these people, and one of the principal issues in the case became the question of who was responsible for this expense, $580 or the two brokerage houses — Carlisle & Jacquelin and DeCapote, Doremus — or perhaps, all three.

The majority held that federal court rules clearly required notifying all identifiable parties to a class action, so that each of them can bring in their own attorney or drop out if they prefer not to be bound by the outcome.

Fulbright bumped in Arkansas; Oregon's Morse starts comeback bid

ARNOLD B. SAWILAK
The "New South" turned away from old faces — J. William Fulbright and Orval Faubus — in the primary election Tuesday. But Oregon voters gave new life to the maverick political career of Wayne Morse.

The rejection of Fulbright in the Senate and of Faubus as the six-time former Gov. of Arkansas Democrats, along with the defeat of veteran Democratic Rep. Frank Stubblefield in Kentucky, gave mounting credence to the belief that established political figures regardless of party are in grave jeopardy after Watergate.

Though Morse is 73 and served 24 years in the Senate, his campaign was tailored to capitalize on the potent issue of integrity in government and on his own long record as a fiery dissenter against establishment politics.

The victory of Gov. Dale Gribble in Arkansas was not a surprise because he had been leading in the polls from the start of his carefully planned campaign to wean voters from the southern tradition of putting top value on congressional seniority in favor of sending new faces to Washington to push for change.

But Bumpers, majority of well over 60 per cent was a crushing rebuff to the 69-year-old Fulbright, who left a university presidency in 1940 to serve one term in the House and five in the Senate. He had gained global prominence as the independent-minded chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a leader of opposition to U.S. involvement in the Indochina war.

Bumpers, 48, serving his second term as governor, is regarded as a sure winner in November, although he does have Republican opposition from John H. Jones, a banker.

Bumpers is a Southern Democrat who turned away from the racial politics that dominated the party in that region for nearly a century after the Civil War. While he made a splash in 1970 by whipping Faubus for Democratic nomination and unseating Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.

Former Rep. David Pryor, another relative newcomer in Arkansas politics, outpolled Faubus, who became the symbol of Southern resistance to racial change when he tried to block school integration in Little Rock in 1958.

Pryor, who served one term in the House and quickly gained an activist reputation, barely lost two years ago to Sen. John L. McClellan, the senior Arkansas Democrat.

Pryor ran well ahead of Faubus and Lt. Gov. Bob Riley in the primary, but his total was barely over the 50 per cent plurality needed to avoid a runoff with the former governor June 11.

In Kentucky, Republican Sen. Marlow Cook won renomination with ease, as did Gov. Wendell Ford, who will be his opponent in a big Senate battle this fall.

Democrats in the state's western 1st District unseated Rep. Frank Stubblefield, a 16-year veteran who had become second-ranking Democrat on the House Agriculture Committee. The winner was State Sen. Carroll Hubbard, 36, who labeled Stubblefield a "do-nothing congressman."

Morse was the favorite in Oregon, but some observers thought the one-time "Tiger of the Senate" might be going to the well one time too many in seeking another chance against Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who beat him in 1968. Morse went to the Senate in 1944 as a Republican, but left the GOP during the Eisenhower years and styled himself as an independent for several years before moving to the Democratic side. Like Fulbright, he was a strong opponent of the Vietnam War and was one of only two senators who voted against the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution in 1964.

A major upset occurred in the Oregon GOP battle for a nominee to succeed Gov. Tom McCall, prevented by law from running again. State Sen. Victor Atiyeh handily defeated favored Secretary of State Clay Myers. In the Democratic primary, State Treasurer Robert Strub held a narrow lead in a three-way battle for the Democratic bid.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Former U.S. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson says high-ranking Republicans have beckoned to him to run for president in 1976. But he sees his present chances of getting the nomination as "very outside."

Richardson, who was at Providence College Tuesday to receive an honorary doctorate of laws degree and to deliver the main commencement address, also said in an interview

Kidwell raps arrogance

TWIN FALLS — Republican attorney general candidate Wayne Kidwell blasted "federal arrogance" and called for state resistance to many federal "schemes" here Tuesday.

Kidwell served as Senate majority leader during one of his two terms in the State Legislature. He also served as Ada County prosecutor from 1966 to 1968, when he was first elected to the state Senate.

Speaking before the Twin Falls County Republican Women's Club, Kidwell said the U. S. Forest Service has stepped way beyond its authority in its plan to "obliterate" the town of Obidian.

"The rationale for this plan, he said, was that the town blocks the view of the Sawtooth Mountains from Highway 93 for up to 300 yards."

"I think that's the kind of federal arrogance that the Idaho attorney general not only should stand up to, but has an obligation to stand up to," Kidwell said.

(See related story, p. 3)

He cited the State of Missouri's refusal to go along with Lady Bird Johnson's national beautification program as an example of successful state resistance.

When the state had federal monies out off because of its resistance, it went to court and won, he said.

Unwilling to appeal the matter to a higher court where the decision would apply to all states, the federal government gave in, he said.

Kidwell maintained Idaho aggressively should oppose such federal encroachment through the courts. If the state's attorney general took the lead, he would be backed up by the legislature, he said.

He mentioned national land use planning legislation bills to require use of safety belts and proposals for national control over Snake River water as other examples of "dangerous and unwarranted federal interference."

On the issue of allocation of Snake River water, Kidwell said, "Isn't it interesting that each time Sen. Church says they're going to take our water again?"

Kidwell termed forced disclosure of campaign

WAYNE KIDWELL
... AG candidate

contributions "a little like gun registration." Honest people will go along with the law while the crook won't pay attention to it, he said.

"Just passing a law isn't enough. There were plenty of laws in the state of Maryland, but that did not stop former Vice President Spiro Agnew, he said.

He said he fears the tendency to pass a law every time there is a problem.

As a state senator, Kidwell said he proposed an ethics bill in the legislature in 1968, long before honesty in government became such a popular issue. Though it passed the Senate, the bill was shot down in the House, he said.

Kidwell said he supports campaign disclosure. But, he said, the Sunshine Initiative would work against Republican candidates because the so-called "political education" work of powerful groups such as labor unions and the League of Women Voters would not have to be reported.

He lambasted the current Attorney General Tony Park as a Democrat for "washing his hands" of narcotics work.

The attorney general still has the responsibility to serve as the legal advisor to the Department of Law Enforcement which now handles narcotics, he said.

And, he said the attorney general's office retains the Bureau of Organized Crime which should be involved in exposing narcotics rackets.

"If you think there isn't such a thing as organized crime, look again," Kidwell said. Even in Idaho organized crime exists and is usually tied in with narcotics, he maintained.

He said he would make "hard narcotics and tracing it to its source" one of his top priorities, if elected attorney general.

Kidwell also criticized Park for not making opinions of the office public as required by law. He said Park's ignoring this law is the "type of arrogance" Idahoans will not put up with.

Kidwell said that after he started to criticize Park on this issue three weeks ago, Park ordered the opinions printed.

Park should release copies of the opinions to the public law library immediately, Kidwell said.

Kidwell cited his experience as an aggressive Ada County prosecutor as well as his service as a two-term state senator and a one-term Senate majority leader.

His qualifications for the office of attorney general, he also referred to his long service in the Republican Party and to his management of the Idaho Youth for Goldwater campaign 10 years ago.

JEROME — A memorial service was held at the Springside Lodge Monday.

Mrs. George Easton, Mrs. George Redick, Mrs. Leigh Nelson, Mrs. Glen Rolfe, Mrs. W. L. Gill and Edith Narcos, conducted the service.

An invitation was read to Hagaman's tonight June 18.

Akos walk was held after the meeting, with proceeds donated to the World Eye Bank and Visual Research Foundation.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Pearl Utter, Mrs. Lucy Lewis and Mrs. Willard Shropshire.

High seeks re-election

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Richard S. High, R-Twin Falls, said today he would seek re-election to the Idaho State Senate.

High has been chairman of the Senate Finance Committee for six of his eight years in the Legislature.

High is a farmer. He is a graduate mining engineer and a graduate of the Army Command and General Staff College, where he also was an instructor.

During World War II, High commanded an airborne company in Europe.

He and his wife Laura have lived in Twin Falls for 25 years.

Primary initiative under way

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho College Republican League is undertaking an initiative drive for a "state presidential primary."

David Warnick, league state chairman, said the initiative proposes a primary that is "a blend of the convention and the primary system" in a talk before the Twin Falls County Republican Women's Club Tuesday.

Nearly 25,000 signatures are required to put the proposal on the ballot.

Under the plan, 20 percent of the delegates would be chosen at a state convention, while 80 percent would be elected in a primary, he said.

A poll taken by Rep. John Penney, R-Eupat, showed overwhelming support for such a primary, he said.

Warnick said the initiative calls for election of delegates for candidates represented in the primary, as opposed to a winner-take-all system.

"We've got to always include all segments of the party," he said.

With the Watergate scandals, "the Republicans are getting hit over the head on the campus," he said. Warnick added that the Republicans now need to support a positive program such as the initiative to gather strength.

State attorney general candidates Tim Hopkins and Wayne Kidwell also addressed the club. Hopkins called for reorganization of the office with a smaller but better experienced legal staff. Kidwell blasted "federal interference" with state matters and proposed legal opposition to this intervention by the attorney general's office. (See related stories this page and page 3).

Republican candidates for state representative from district 24, Lloyd Brackett and Lawrence Knigge, introduced themselves at the meeting.

Brackett, a rancher, said he has lived in the Magic Valley all his life, but has not been able to leave his work for politics until now.

Knigge cited a long list of his community activities in Filer and Twin Falls County.

Knigge said inflation is one of our greatest problems and called for fewer new government programs.

Applicants discussed

TWIN FALLS — Several applicants for operation of the restaurant at the Twin Falls City-County Airport were discussed in a meeting of the Airport Commission Tuesday night.

Officials have been attempting since February to lease the restaurant facility and reopen it for the convenience of the traveling public. City Manager John Miller told the commission an applicant from California, formerly a chef at Jackson, Nev., is interested in returning to this area. Doyle Enterprises, Inc., Ketchum, are interested in applying for the lease again although they did not return the contract by the specified deadline during earlier negotiations. Miller said.

Real bad week

TWIN FALLS — It has been a bad week for the Sawtooth National Forest vehicles.

Several days ago a car parked in the parking lot of the office headquarters was entered and thieves made off with two cameras, a tape recorder and brief case.

Tuesday city police were advised two Forest Service vehicles parked at Bob Reese Parking lot were minus their spare tires.

Gooding meet Thursday

GOODING — The Gooding County Planning Commission will discuss four topics at a meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Wayne Matthews, chairman, said the meeting in the Soil Conservation Service meeting room here will cover completion of planning maps, and greenbelt, residential and commercial zones.

He said critical areas include flood plains, canyon rim, Box Canyon and the Fossil Beds. The final item will be discussion of a proposed truck route.

Burglaries probed

TWIN FALLS — Two burglaries were under investigation this morning by Twin Falls city police.

T.D. Hall, owner of L.D. Hall Auto Sales, 341 Main Ave. E., reported someone broke into the workshop building on the southeast lot and took two drills. He estimated loss at $89. The burglary was discovered at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Beatrice P. Ralphs, 42 Fifth Ave. W., told officers someone broke into her home while she was away Tuesday and took $244 in cash from the house.

Ketchum couple arrested

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — A Ketchum, Idaho, couple is among six persons arrested here in connection with smuggling more than $1 million worth of cocaine.

Customs agents said those arrested included Curtis Johnson, 30, 27, and his wife Rebecca Porter Johnson, 24.

Agents confiscated more than 6½ pounds of liquid cocaine, along with two pounds of the more common crystalline cocaine, found in the luggage of a traveler from Bogota, Colombia.

Seeks post

BOISE (UPI) — Charlie Brown, a consultant in elementary and secondary education in the State Department of Education, is the latest to announce his candidacy for State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Brown said he would run on the Republican ticket.

Brown began his teaching career at Richfield in 1965.

AG answer expected

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General W. Anthony Park said today he expects to have an answer before Saturday for an Idaho Falls man who has challenged constitutionality of requiring citizens to file for a filing fee.

"We're working on it," Park said. "It's a serious constitutional question and we're not going to regurgitate an answer."

"But we'll have an answer before June 1," he said.

Cats win at Boise

BOISE (UPI) — Boise cats pussyfooted their way out of a proposed licensing ordinance Tuesday night.

After a week-long flurry of telephone calls and letters protesting the proposal the council voted to table it.

Councilman Ralph McAdams, who last week cited a need for some cat control, told colleagues Tuesday publication was so negative "it's gotten to the point where my cats won't even speak to me."

GUILTY plea given

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (UPI) — Alma Cook, 64, Shelley, has pleaded guilty of a reduced plea of involuntary manslaughter and District Judge Arnold Beebe has set June 10 for sentencing.

Cook originally had been charged with second degree murder in the March shooting death of his son-in-law, Thomas Kelley, 45.

Bligh County Prosecutor Kenneth E. Clarke told the judge the state was willing to reduce the charge because he said he would have difficulty proving second degree murder.

Nominating petitions eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Secretary of State Pete T. Conners plans to open his office from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. next Saturday and Sunday to accept nominating petitions for state and national office.

By law, candidates for public office in this year's primary or judicial elections must file their nominating petitions between June 1 and 7.

Rupert men sentenced

RUPERT — Two Rupert men were sentenced Thursday to one-year probation for the vandalism of an LDS church in Rupert April 1.

Gerald Norby, and Ronald Colman, both 18, were put on probation after being found guilty of causing over $2,000 damage to the Rupert 3rd and 4th ward church. The men damaged glass doors and windows, a piano and let water run onto carpets and floors at the church. They later turned themselves in to police after reporting their actions to Bishop Otis Anderson.

Buhl youth injured

BUHL — Layton F. Montgomery, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Montgomery, is in satisfactory condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital with injuries received in a bicycle accident Tuesday night.

Deputy Sheriff Curt Pryor said the boy was one of a group of children riding bicycles on Mountain View drive, a residential street. The child's bicycle was struck by a car driven by Neal Layton, 16, Buhl, whom witnesses said was obeying the 35-mile limit.

Deputy Pryor said children in the neighborhood had been warned previously about "riding all over the road."

The mishap occurred at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. Pryor was assisted in the investigation by Doug Johnson, Buhl policeman.

Record Wood River flood laps near Blaine house foundation

River level takes drop

HAILEY — The Big Wood River receded to 6.21 feet this morning from Tuesday's record high of 6.41 feet.

Several basements, especially in the Gimlet Airport area, have received seepage from groundwater, according to residents. The main Wood River channel near Gimlet is running about 20 feet from a newly built house. Groundwater is running steadily through a channel around the house and covers a dirt road in back of the house. As yet, the structure has not been touched.

Several pastures up and down the Big Wood were also reported flooding today. Groundwater was reported covering land in wooded areas about 30 yards from the banks on each side of the river.

Flood waters are ripping deeper channels through low lying sagebrush areas south of Bellevue and flowing into nearby travel pits.

Water was approaching one house north of the Deer Creek Bridge, and expected to reach the house today, according to W.R. Watts, deputy watermaster of the river.

Cooler temperatures have been forecast for today, which may slow the flood conditions.

Rupert gets high sewer priority

BOISE — Three Magic Valley communities are among the top six Idaho cities on a priority list for federal and state sewer grants.

No objections were received to the priority list in a hearing here Tuesday called by the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services.

Rupert is second on the list and Jerome and Albion are fifth and sixth, respectively.

The list ranks the communities in the order in which they will receive the about $7.7 million in federal and state funds for sewer construction projects in 1975.

About $1.4 million has been "reserved" for the Rupert projects, according to a DECS spokesman. The projects include first phase development of a Street Interceptor seers and lift stations, a sewer line connection with Minidoka County High School and a preliminary study of subwater effects on sewer line flow.

Another $400,000 has been set aside for the Jerome project. It will pay the major portion of costs for design specifications for a secondary treatment plant.

The "reserve" fund for the Albion project is $17,000. It will go toward construction of a new secondary treatment facility.

Pocahontas tops the priority list. Orofino - Anahka - Riverside and Payette Lakes are third and fourth, respectively.

Criticism was voiced at the hearing of the department's water quality strategy plan.

Speaking for the Associated Industries of Idaho, Wallace Cory, Boise, said "industry has not been given enough credit for pollution control programs which have eliminated some effluents and reduced others."

Cory noted that the strategy plan cites industrial, municipal and agricultural discharges for "degrading the upper Snake River."

"It appears from the phraseology that Idaho industry remains the whipping boy," he said.

Seal coating top priority

TWIN FALLS — Seal coating of the main runway at Joplin Field has been given top priority for 1975.

Members of the Twin Falls City-County Airport Commission today threw up an airport development eligibility list which will qualify for federal funding in the amount of $355,000. The balance of the funding would come from state and local sources.

Seal coating was termed a safety item in view of the heavy fees now using the airport. It was estimated that total cost of the seal coating would cost to $40,000.

Second on the priority list for 1975 projects is an improved apron and taxiway area and also access road illumination. Estimated cost is $400,000. Extension of the fixed-base operation taxiway to connect with the present Runway 25 taxiway was given third priority with an estimated cost of $400,000 and fourth was completion of the general aviation project now underway. Total cost was placed at $200,000.

Bill Powell, airport commission chairman, and William Chanen, county commission chairman, said the priority list was established because this is the last time government funding at the 35.5 per cent level will be available. The law governing such projects ends with the fiscal year and must be reauthorized by congress if it is to continue beyond 1975.

Application for government assistance in all four projects will be made at the Seattle Federal Aviation Administration office by June 17. Final cost estimates together with engineering data will be furnished the FAA in October. City-county share of improvement cost is estimated at less than $50,000 after state funds are added to those coming from federal sources.

Local man named

BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus announced Tuesday the appointments and reappointments of several local men to various state boards and commissions.

Arlan M. Call, Twin Falls, was named to the State Library and Conservation Advisory Council for a one-year term. Call succeeds Frank Thomas of Boise.

The district has asked that state water quality standards be waived or changed for the section of the Snake River between the proposed new American Falls dam and the backwaters of Lake Walcott at Blaine and Cassia Counties.

In its petition to DECS, the district requested elimination or waiver of a requirement that dissolved oxygen levels be maintained at 90 per cent saturation levels in state waters.

The current state standard requires dissolved oxygen content of 6 parts per million (ppm) or 90 per cent of saturation, whichever is greater.

Ordinance review set

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls City Councils next month will review and amend a proposed Planned Unit Development (PUD) ordinance.

If adopted, the PUD would permit large building projects in any part of the city under strict development rules. The projects could violate existing zoning regulations.

A "discussion draft" of the PUD was presented in the regular meeting of the Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night. A subcommittee of city zoners wrote the draft.

The zoners delayed discussion of the proposed law and passed it on to the city council "to consider as a concept only."

Tom Schafer, chairman of the zoning panel, said the City Council and zoners would discuss the PUD independently, then redraft it.

A summary attached to the "discussion draft" said the PUD "is intended to provide a vehicle for the development of larger parcels as a total planned unit."

"It allows a great deal of freedom from conventional requirements such as setbacks, side yards, minimum lot sizes, etc., but places the responsibility for quality development with the developer," the summary stated.

The summary also explains a requirement that has made the PUD a popular law in many communities — "The developer must prepare a preliminary proposal to demonstrate to both the Zoning Board and the City Council what the use of the land is to be. The proposal must show that the intended development will achieve a public benefit through creation of open space, public facilities or need."

That stipulation effectively forces the developer to make a firm commitment on what he intends to do with the land. Any variance from that commitment would require city approval.

Commercial developments would be given special consideration in the PUD, according to the summary.

"Commercial use in a residential development may or may not be granted and must be distinctly subordinate to the residential use," the summary stated.

"No commercial use will be permitted unless the development consists of at least 150 residential units, and no commercial construction can begin until at least 75 dwelling units are at least 50 per cent complete," the summary added.

Public hearings would be required before approval of a project under the PUD ordinance.

The city council and zoning panel will review the proposed law in "work sessions" next month.

with the 6 ppm requirement as it applies to water discharged from the new dam. The 90 per cent saturation standard, however, is not "economically feasible," according to the district's petition.

Water containing 6 ppm of dissolved oxygen "would be adequate to sustain fish life," the district contends.

The State Fish and Game Department and private recreation groups have demanded enforcement of the water quality standards to protect private and commercial fishing interests below the new dam.

According to a DECS report, the dissolved oxygen content of water in the current American Falls reservoir is "often low," but is boosted when the water is discharged over the existing dam's spillway.

The new dam, however, would eliminate the spillway discharge and send all water through power turbines, causing the oxygen "problem" to be "extended downstream," the DECS report said.

Meeting the 90 per cent saturation standard could add $200,000 to $300,000 annually to operating costs at the new dam, according to Barker.

The first four winners in each event, as well as top go-around winners in the district event will be eligible to participate in the state high school rodeo, scheduled June 19 at Burley.

Mrs. Patterson said winners in each of the five districts in the state can apply for a scholarship from the state rodeo association and any year-around rider can apply for a scholarship from this source, since many colleges also have rodeo associations.

The aim of the national rodeo association, Mrs. Patterson said, is "development of sportsmanship and character in the youth of our country."

Driver charged

KETCHUM — A Ketchum man has been charged with involuntary manslaughter following a car-pedestrian accident Sunday which resulted in the death of a Ketchum youth Monday.

William D. Middlemist, 44, was released on his own recognizance Tuesday afternoon after the manslaughter charges were filed against him. Middlemist is charged with death of Michael, Patrick, 18, Ketchum, who was allegedly struck by Middlemist's car while walking south on US Highway 93 about 10 p.m. Sunday.

According to Ketchum police officers, Middlemist and three passengers were proceeding south when Blitt was struck. Officers said Blitt died of multiple injuries.

Investigating officer Bill Sanders said further details of the incident would not be released pending further investigation. A preliminary hearing for Middlemist has been set July 2.

Rural help meet topic

FAIRFIELD — The federal Rural Development Act will be discussed here tonight at the regular meeting of the Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments (WRRACOG).

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the Camas County courthouse.

The Rural Development Act, offering loan guarantees for business and industry in rural areas and loans for municipal sewer and water facilities, will be outlined by a spokesman from the Federal Home Administration.

The regional planning council members also will hear a progress report on their application for administration of aging funds in the Magic Valley. WRRACOG and the South Idaho Regional Planning and Development Association (its sister counterpart) have submitted a joint application for the aging program.

However, a task force of senior citizens recently voted to channel the more than $100,000 in available funds through the College of Southern Idaho.

But a "definite decision has not been made yet," according to Dell Taylor, executive director of WRRACOG. He said final action will be taken by the Idaho Office of Aging.

Former Rupert man acquitted

RUPERT — A former Rupert man has been found innocent on a year-old charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Randall D. Nelson, 21, San Jose, Calif., was acquitted on the hit and run charge stemming from a May 11, 1973 incident in which he ran over the body of a Rupert teenager who had been struck by another car. The case was tried May 23 before Magistrate Judge Cresson Andersen.

According to Minidoka County Prosecuting attorney, Robert Nielsen, Nelson was shown to be unaware that he had been involved in an accident.

The accident occurred last May when the 19-year-old was struck by a motorist near his home west of Rupert while riding a bicycle in the dark. Shortly after the accident, Nelson drove through the scene of the accident, passing over the body of the boy. A coroner's jury failed to establish at the time that the boy may have been still alive when the Nelson car ran over him.

Nelson was brought back from California on a bench warrant for the trial.

Wrong owner

TWIN FALLS — A small frame home which burned last Friday morning in Twin Falls, is owned by Robert Depewick, Ketchum.

A Times-News has quoted Twin Falls Fire Department and police officers who stated the building was the property of L. James Koutnik, Twin Falls. Koutnik says he does not own the building.

The occupant of the building, Mrs. Norma Struss, was treated for smoke inhalation at the hospital and released. The building is located at 644 Fourth Ave. W.

AF dam hearing draws mixed views

The district has asked that state water quality standards be waived or changed for the section of the Snake River between the proposed new American Falls dam and the backwaters of Lake Walcott at Blaine and Cassia Counties.

In its petition to DECS, the district requested elimination or waiver of a requirement that dissolved oxygen levels be maintained at 90 per cent saturation levels in state waters.

HS rodeo features top notch students

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

FILER — Spectators at the Fifth District High School rodeo opening tonight at the Filer Fairgrounds will see youths who are top notch students as well as riders.

"We like to emphasize the majority of these kids are tops in their schools," Leona Patterson, Gooding, secretary of the adult board of directors, said, "not just ones who can't do anything else." Her own son, Larry, who has participated in high school rodeo for four years, is valedictorian of this year's Gooding High School class.

Nearly a year of preparation goes into the production of a district event, like the rodeo which opens today at 7:30 p.m. and runs through Saturday at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

The Filer Kiwanis Club, the sponsoring group, has handled tickets, advertising and arranged for the provision of food and refreshments.

Wendy, Mrs. Patterson said, and the youths contacted area merchants who donated the saddles, buckles and spurs which will be given for prizes. No money is awarded.

Students must have completed the ninth grade and be members of the National High School Rodeo Association before they can enter district competition, Mrs. Patterson said.

The adult board works with their youth-counterpart on the many details necessary for a successful district rodeo of this size. The 200 participants this year are the largest number the fifth district has ever had.

Alan Patterson, Gooding, is president, his wife is secretary, and Carolyn Edwards, Richfield, is treasurer. Directors include the Muir, Jerome, Bud Roseberry, Jerome; Ted Uhrig, Hatley; Sid Edwards, Richfield; Ted Christensen, Rupert; and Dick Myers and Moe Sagers, both Gooding.

Student officers include Brent Fiealer, Fairfield, president; Jade Robinson, Tuttle, secretary; and Randy Dains, Gooding, vice president.

Owners dig into pockets to make draft successful

NEW YORK (UPI) — After selecting the outstanding talent in the collegiate ranks for the price of a phone call, National Basketball Association owners began throwing around millions and millions of dollars today in an effort to sign those choices.

The prevailing attitude of the Basketball Class of '74 was summed up by Tampa Russell, the eighth player chosen in Tuesday's collegiate draft, when he said, "I'll sign wherever the money is, I think, either with the NBA or ABA, whichever one has it."

Russell, a 6-6 forward from the University of Michigan with another year of college eligibility, was the first of the players who were selected by the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Some clubs were a little more fortunate in early dealings with their top choices. The Portland Trail Blazers, who knew weeks ago they would choose No. 1, went into the draft with $11 million.

Three basketball players connected with Idaho were taken during the NBA draft Tuesday.

Kim Hughes, 6-11 center from University of Wisconsin, who was born in Twin Falls, was taken by Buffalo in the third round and Ed Palubinskas, LSU grad from Australia, after playing two years at Hucks College was taken at Atlanta in the fourth round and Clyde Dickey, senior starter at Boise State, was picked by Phoenix.

Center Bill Walton of UCLA already tucked away with a five-year contract, Walton, a three-time Player of the Year, will receive between two and three million dollars.

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings, another team which needs instant help, also rejoiced in a quick signing when their first choice, 6-7 forward Scott Wedman of Colorado, agreed to a four-year contract.

"Kansas City just had a better offer," said Wedman, who previously had been drafted by Memphis of the ABA. "That's the main reason right now. I didn't really consider too much about the longues."

Centers were in prime demand during the draft, which was conducted by telephone hook-up to the NBA office in New York. Following Walton, the Philadelphia 76ers chose 6-8 Marvin Barnes of Providence, the Seattle SuperSonics chose 7-4 Tom Burleson of NCAA champion North Carolina State and the Phoenix Suns took 6-8

John Shumate of Notre Dame.

If Shumate signs with Phoenix, he undoubtedly will switch to forward since the Suns already have 6-10 Neal Walk.

Burleson, who will become the tallest player in the pro ranks, wasn't surprised at being chosen third and said he was going to leave the negotiations, relating both to money and team, to his agent, Norman Elias. Indiana has the ABA rights to him.

"They said they were going to pick me," Burleson said of his selection by Seattle.

"Negotiations will start now between my agent and Seattle and Indiana."

In addition to Russell, four other hardship players were chosen on the first round, including a freshman, 6-9 forward Cliff Pondexter of Long Beach State, selected by the Chicago Bulls. Chicago, making another selection on the opening round as the result of a deal completed less than an hour earlier which sent Howard Porter to the New York Knicks, used it to take 6-9 forward Maurice Lucas of Marquette.

Sports Bucks already have Big O's replacement

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks are going to get three-time ABA All-Star guard George Thompson and they are not going to have to give up any players to do it.

But they are going to have to give up a healthy amount of cash to the Boston Celtics for the National Basketball Association rights to Thompson, who played out his option with the Memphis Tigers.

And one of the big questions is, where's the money going to come from?

The Bucks have a very large payroll and a very small arena. The 19,938 seats at the aged Milwaukee Arena don't generate enough income to spend money wildly.

Thompson, the former Marquette University star, has been in Milwaukee a lot recently, and he seems to have reached agreement with the Bucks and General Manager Wayne Embury.

Embury will only say that he's had some conversations with Thompson, and with Celtics boss Red Auerbach. But Thompson admits that things are just about set.

Thompson would probably be a good drawing card in Milwaukee. He has excellent range as a shooter, is a good passer, and, at 6-foot 2, 215-pounds, gives nothing away in strength. Perhaps his major weakness is lack of speed.

But the Bucks appear ready to take the chance on getting an established guard, which brings up the question of money again.

Oscar Robertson, who commands about a $250,000-per

SEC may return to post-season tourney

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) — The Southeastern Conference tentatively agreed Tuesday to reinstate its post-season basketball tournament in 1976 after a 24 year lapse.

The agreement came at the closing session of the league's annual spring meeting with the basketball coaches casting in 6-2 vote and their athletic directors giving their approval by a 7-3 margin.

However, the tournament still must be approved by the presidents of the ten member schools when they meet in Birmingham, Ala., next December.

The SEC held a post-season basketball tournament for 20 years but quit after 1952 because it had been agreed the previous year to let regular season play decide the league championship.

To make room for the tournament the coaches and athletic directors also decided to cut the number of regular season intra-conference games from 18 to 14, starting with the 1975-76 season.

"Interest in a post-season tournament has been growing in recent years," said C.M. Newton of Alabama, chairman of the SEC Basketball Coaches Association. "The feeling has been that a tournament would promote more interest in the lower teams in the standings. Money from such a tournament was also a consideration."

Newton explained that SEC basketball teams, starting in 1975-76, would be limited to 25 regular season games, instead of the present 28, allowing for 11 non-conference opponents.

Newton said all ten SEC teams would be involved in the tournament with the top six in the standings getting first round byes.

The lower four teams would play on the Saturday immediately following the end of the regular season," said Newton. "The two first round winners and the six which drew byes would then play the next Monday. Those four games would be held at the site of the higher seeded teams."

"The four semi-finalists would play the next Friday and Saturday at a neutral site to determine the SEC champion and our berth in the NCAA national playoffs."

Newton also said the SEC will ask the NCAA to include its runner-up, as well as its champion, in the national basketball playoffs, which are being expanded in 1975 from 25 to 32 teams.

Dodgers unleash 20 hits to bury Cardinals 11-5

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Ken McMullen and Joe Ferguson hit two-run homers Tuesday night to lead the 20-hit Los Angeles attack in an 11-5 win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

McMullen homered in the second to drive in Ron Cey, who had singled, and Ferguson hit a tall high into the left field bleachers in the third inning to drive in Steve Garvey, who had singled. Garvey's hit drove in Bill Russell, who singled before Willie Crawford's single.

The Dodgers took an 8-2 lead in the fourth on a double by Steve Veatch and singles by Russell, Cey and Garvey. Garvey leads the National League in runs batted in with 45.

Homeruns help Reds top Mets

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Johnny Bench and Merv Rettenmund hit homers, the former coming with a runner on base, Tuesday night when the Cincinnati Reds scored a 7-2 victory over the New York Mets and gave Clay Kirby his third victory in six decisions.

Two homers were two of eight hits the Reds collected as they handed Mets' left-handed George Stone his fourth loss in six decisions.

Houston dooms Expos in first

MONTREAL (UPI)—Lee May drove in two runs with a single before leaving the game with a pulled leg muscle and Bob Watson also drove in two runs when the Houston Astros erupted for five runs in the opening inning Tuesday night and went on to defeat the Montreal Expos 8-4.

Houston jumped on the usually reliable Steve Rogers, who dropped his third game.

Braves win on Aaron's homer

ATLANTA (UPI)—Frank Aaron smacked a 390-foot home run in the bottom of the 10th inning to break up a 1-1 pitcher's struggle and give the Atlanta Braves a 2-1 victory Tuesday night over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Aaron's blast off starting and losing pitcher Jim Lonborg came with one out in the 10th. Counting home runs his regular-season play, World Series play and All-Star games, Aaron has 730 home runs, tying him with Babe Ruth. It was the 76th home run in Aaron's career off Philadelphia but only the first off Lonborg.

The Aaron blast was his ninth homer of the season and 722nd of his regular-season career.

Perry wins 8th for Cleveland

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—The Cleveland Indians scored five runs in the first inning Tuesday night and Gaylord Perry pitched a five-hitter for his eighth straight victory, an 8-0 triumph over the Texas Rangers.

Perry thus became the winningest in the majors this year with an 8-1 record.

BLOCKED AWAY from the plate, Ron Blomberg of New York is unceremoniously tagged out by Chicago Catcher Ed Herrmann. Blomberg tried to score from third on a slow roller but the Yanks went on to win 3-2 in 10 innings. (UPI telephoto).

Yanks nip Sox 3-2 in 10th

NEW YORK (UPI)—Graig Nettles, after fouling off an attempted sacrifice bunt, doubled to right field with none out in the 10th inning Tuesday night to give the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

EPA lists new farm pesticide use regulations

(c) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — The Environmental Protection Agency has issued new regulations to protect farm workers from the adverse effects of pesticides.

The regulations, the first board occupational health measure aimed directly at the bulk of agricultural laborers, will take effect June 10, more than a year after such an action was first proposed by a federal agency.

The regulations concern the application of pesticides to fields and orchards and specify how much time must elapse before laborers can re-enter a field after such application. They were promulgated in the face of an unknown but apparently increasing number of pesticide poisonings that have occurred since the banning of DDT and the substitution of less persistent but more toxic pesticides.

The new rulings also reflect a growing concern about the unknown cumulative effects of repeated pesticide exposure in man.

Although the labels of all federally registered agricultural pesticides have since the 1950's contained precautions to protect workers, the precautions were directed mainly to the applicators of pesticides rather than to those working in the fields.

Last year, the environmental protection agency held 17 public hearings around the country to help in the development of more stringent controls. The new regulations are the ultimate result. They include the following:

—Pesticides should be applied so that workers not directly involved in applying them will not be exposed.

—Workers should not enter a treated field until sprays have dried or dust settled. If entry before that time is essential, protective clothing—a hat, tightly woven long-sleeved shirt and long trousers, shoes and socks—must be worn.

—When fields are treated, workers must be adequately warned orally or by signs posted at field entrances, and care must be taken that workers who don't speak English understand the warning.

For a dozen especially hazardous pesticides, more specific entry times were set.

The agency specified that 24 hours must elapse before entering a field that has been treated with Guthion, Phosalone, EPN and Ethion, and a 48-hour re-entry time must be observed following treatment with ethyl and methyl Parathion, Demeton, Azadirachtin, Carbophenothion, Malathion, Bidrin and Endrin.

Of these, Parathion has been the most frequent cause of pesticide poisonings.

But the bulk of the nation's reported cases of pesticide poisoning following re-entry into a treated field have occurred in California, where concentrated-pesticide applications, extreme heat and lack of rainfall contribute to prolonged persistence of large quantities of pesticide.

California, accordingly, has established its own re-entry regulations, far stricter than the new federal standards.

To enforce the new regulations, the federal agency has assigned several pesticide enforcement officers in its 10 regional offices to make spot checks in the field, supplemented by agents from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Harvest outlook good

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prospects for sizable wheat harvests in Europe and the Soviet Union have improved because of weather, the Agriculture Department says.

But the situation is still uncertain in India.

The fate of two-thirds of India's crucial 1974 grain crop depends on whether that nation gets good summer monsoon rains, a department report said Monday. Spring rains also will be "especially important" to China's food production this year, it added.

A summary of expected harvests said rains in late April early May kept Western Europe's winter grains in "generally good to excellent condition," and also improved prospects in Eastern Europe. The same was true in the southwestern Soviet Union, which previously had suffered a dry winter and early spring.

It predicted above-average wheat harvests throughout the Near East, except in Turkey, and reported that Canadian farmers planned to increase their wheat planting by 2 million acres.

Pesticide ban lists 5 sprays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has banned five more indoor pesticide sprays containing the suspected cancer-causing gas vinyl chloride.

The latest products banned are in addition to 23 other aerosols sprays previously ordered off the market by the agency. The EPA said the five new additions to the list came as a result of a review of the formulas of products under its jurisdiction.

The five were identified as "Household Flea Killer," made by Bonide Chemical Company; "Clutter Mite," made by Carson Chemicals Inc.; "Clutter Lube Spray," distributed by Valley Veterinary Supply; "Clutter Lube Spray," distributed by Manover Dry Products; and "Fogging Dispenser," made by Carson Chemicals Inc.

The EPA said it did not know how many cans of the sprays are on the market, said consumers having the products in their homes are advised to dispose of them one at a time by wrapping the cans in a newspaper and placing it in the regular trash collection.

The EPA action was the latest in a series of government crackdowns on products containing vinyl chloride, a widely used gaseous chemical which has been linked to 13 cases of a rare form of liver cancer among workers at plants in the United States where the chemical was processed.

Trading request blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An cotton trade association has charged the Agriculture Department's Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) with producing windfall profits for some lucky traders while forcing heavy losses on others through "intelligence" last year.

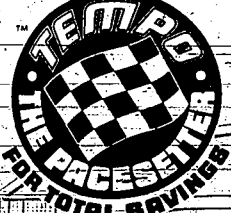

Alex Caldwell, CEA administrator, charged the charge by the American Cotton Shippers Association. In a recent interview, he said the case involved in the charge was properly handled by the government.

The controversy involves the CEA's request last September to the New York Cotton Exchange to shut down trading in the October 1973 cotton futures contract except for sales or purchases made to liquidate existing "positions," or contracts.

"The government assumed the role of manipulator when it suspended trading," Caldwell said, "counting those who were long on the market to lose substantial sums and those who were short to be unjustly enriched by a windfall profit." The shippers association said.

(Long, in market jargon, means a trader has bought a contract for future delivery. Short means a trader has sold a contract for future delivery.)

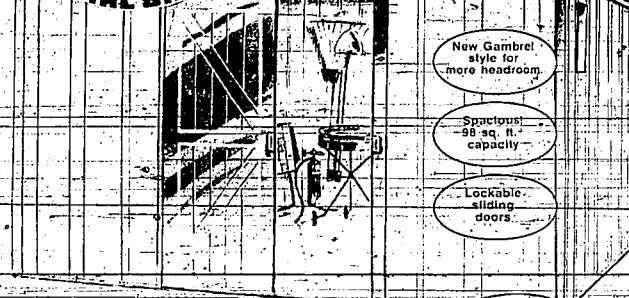

The shippers said the CEA acted on ground that cotton was in short supply. But at the same time, the trade group asserted other agricultural agencies had evidence that supplies were adequate and Agriculture Secretary Earl Buttz was using that evidence to fight off demands for cotton export controls.

MARILYN BALLES sets date

Filer miss plans rites

FILER — Mr. and Mrs. Alex Balles, Filer, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marilyn Kay, to Larry L. Fisher.

Fisher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Fisher, Filer. Miss Balles is a junior at Filer High School.

Fisher is a 1970 graduate of Moena Valley High School, Overton, Nev., and is employed by Gale Center, Castleford. A July 3 wedding is planned.

Lake scene slated for TF concert

TWIN FALLS — Silhouetted by Dierkes Lake, local musicians will present a free concert from 7-11 p.m. until midnight Sunday.

In addition to music ranging from gospel to rock, local artists will present a ballet and a martial arts exhibition.

A stage and special lighting will be set up at the lake for the concert, which will be recorded by a local organization.

Refreshments will be sold at the site from about 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Any local musicians interested in performing at the concert should call 733-0319.

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Loo Sancton" by Trevanion: Explosive edges of the excitement — as Jonathan Hemlock tries to locate a set of secretly made films — that incriminate a number of high-ranking British officials.

"The Partners" by Louis Auchincloss: The story of the small but distinguished New York firm of Shepard, Plimley and Cox and particularly of one of the senior partners, Beekman Eminger.

"The Reason For Roses" by Babs H. Deal: The author brings these girls together in a small-Alabama town in the late 20's and that lingering scent of that special summer leaves its mark on each of their lives.

"Gaining Like Sisy" by Richard Armour: You'll be relaxed enough to forget your aches and pains and your brain cells will be stimulated as you read this positive, realistic and optimistic book.

"Country Commune Cooking" by Lucy Horton: Lucy Horton has done more than give us exotic recipes. She has assembled the crucial artifacts of a movement within a movement.

"The Primal Scream" by Arthur Janor: Is there a cure for neurosis? Here is a revolutionary new approach to psychological thinking; primal therapy with remarkable evidence for help of lifetime ailments, both psychological and physical.

"The Time-Life Family Legal Guide": This valuable and important volume contains the basic information that you, the layman, need to know about the law.

"Hell's End" by Ivan Southall: Here is a portrayal of human courage as seven children — and their schoolmistress are exploring caves for aboriginal drawings when a violent storm breaks out.

"The World is Full of It" by Isadore Barmah: The author vividly illustrates his contention that oversell, hypocrisy, and deception are being practiced daily against 200 million Americans, in many cases compelling them to respond to the wrong things for the wrong reasons because of the wrong stimuli.

"Burr" by Gore Vidal: A powerfully readable historical novel, told in the form of a memoir, partly by Burr at the end of his long life and partly by a young journalist.

ANKLES GET THE NOTICE

By Mary Sue Miller

A radio commentator was heard to say, "I saw a dozen or so girls in skirts this morning. Those long stems were a great sight after the pants cover-up."

To get a good notice, those legs must have been right-shapely. Thick ankles alone can lose laurels. Here's the way to work off heavy problems:

1. Sit on a straight chair or high stool. Sitting-legs-forward-and-up, until feet are slightly higher than the seat. Keeping legs straight and together, arch ankles and point toes downward — hold for 5 slow counts. Lower feet to floor, rest and repeat 10 times.

2. Stand erect. Repeatedly come up on tip-toes and slowly lower heels to floor — 20 times. Now bend right knee so foot leaves floor; come up on toes of left foot and lower heel for 20 counts. Repeat with right foot. Hold onto chair for balance as need be.

3. Stand with left foot pointing directly left and right foot to right, with heels not quite touching. Slide right foot behind left foot and come up onto the toes. Without changing foot positions, take 30 short (dancer's) steps to left; then switch foot positions and move to right. Repeat twice, aiming for precise movement.

4. Walk across the room. Let heel and toes touch floor almost simultaneously; keep ankles on an even keel — no wobble. Try to carry these motions into your daily carriage. Your ankles will slim down.

SPOT REDUCING EXERCISES

Spot reduction — key to a proportioned figure. Exercise is the only way to trim those stubborn areas — in low inches exactly where you wish. My new, useful, SPOT REDUCING EXERCISES, gives easy routines — 30 in all — for slimming the upper back, armpits, midriff, hips, legs, ankles — Plus ideal measurements — offer figure-trimming tips. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

DEAR ABBY: You hear so much talk about how terrible the young people are, but how about the adults? This new streaking fad is being encouraged by people who are old enough to know better. You can't pick up a newspaper without reading about a streaker. And everyone thinks it's something to laugh about.

Well, last week my 43-year-old husband went to take his usual shower before dinner, when all of a sudden we heard the shower door bang, and in nothing flat here comes my husband running completely naked past me, our teen-aged daughter and two teen-aged sons! He ran through the living room, dining room, kitchen and back to the bedroom. He thought he was being funny. I was furious—and the children were too shocked to say anything.

What do you think about this streaking business?

DISGUSTED

Just wear blinders

DEAR DISGUSTED: I think that there is so much to cry about today, that streaking is part of the "anything-for-a-laugh" syndrome. For my part, if something I didn't want to see more of came into view, I'd quickly close my eyes.

DEAR ABBY: I am doing time in a federal penitentiary, and have noticed that you seem to have a sympathetic feeling toward prisoners.

I won't go into my history because it would take up your whole column, but I do have a favor to ask of you. I want to study the Bible, but I don't have one. Could you please send me one? I am a Christian—I am not begging—I am paying for it a little at a time. I am 17 years old, and I want to go to college.

FOUR YEARS TO GO

DEAR FOUR: Your color doesn't matter, but your sex does because I have a friend in Dallas, Tex., who will send a red Bible to any man to prison who wants one, and a white Bible to every female inmate; it comes with instructions on how to study, and it's free. His name is Chaplain Ray. Send me your complete address and I'll do the rest. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: The following story is almost identical to the one described by Loved and Lost, which recently appeared in your column. Only the ending is different—I think it's worth printing.

Mature man in his 40s meets younger charming woman in her 20s. She's sexy, charming, vivacious, etc. A serious emotional involvement follows. After a six months hidden passionate affair the man leaves his wife of 10 years and several wonderful children. He begins a new "heavenly" life with the younger woman, and after one year he finds that she is selfish, moody, materialistic, arrogant and possessive. The situation becomes intolerable and the love affair is over.

All this time the wife had been getting counseling to help her over this painful experience. I asked if we could try again, and this magnificent woman look me back with dignity and nobility. For her the whole miserable episode never happened, and she refuses to hear even one word about it. Conclusion: There are still women who hold the home and family above their own pride.

PLEASE WITHHOLD MY NAME

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE EDITOR: No one said it better than Shyl Krass:

"I know what every woman needs. As she performs, grows older. A true and understanding friend To lend a wetproof shoulder. And who, when they shall meet again, Forgets the things she told her."

SEBASTIAN SANDWICHES
12 slices enriched rye bread
Butter
Two-thirds cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup chopped chutney
1 tablespoon curry powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups shredded (medium-shred) cabbage
1 pound feather sliced baked ham
6 slices (1 ounce slices) cheddar cheese

Butter both sides of bread. Combine mayonnaise, chutney, curry powder and salt and fold in cabbage. On each of six slices of bread place equal amounts of sliced ham, about one-half cup of the cabbage mixture and one slice of cheese. Top with remaining bread slices and grill both sides until golden brown. Garnish with radish roses and ripe and stuffed olives. Serves six.

only normal entry back to his hand is his second high spade but South has nothing to lose by leading a heart.

A very alert East might hop up with the queen and hold South to three notrump but most Easts will play low and South will wind up with at least four notrump.

Why is it correct to try the clubs before attacking hearts? Because if the heart is led and a trick lost to East's queen a second spade will be played. This will leave South with no way to get back to his hand to cash the last clubs.

Couple weds in outdoor rites

KETCHUM — Patricia Lea Elledge, Twin Falls, became the bride of Richard Keith Coonts May 18 in a unique outdoor ceremony at the Cathedral Pines north of Ketchum.

The young couple was united during a ceremony performed between two snow banks and before a rustic wooden cross. The Rev. James Keefe, First Christian Church in Kimberly, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Paul Elledge, Twin Falls. She was dressed in a gown fashioned of the 1800 era and designed and made by Gay Sullivan, Whitier, Calif. The full-length white, voile gown with full flowing sleeves trimmed in lace and a cummerbund with lace covered design was accented by a small lace trimmed voile head scarf covering her hair worn in ringlets of the 1800 fashion. A necklace and earring set of old fashioned painted pearls and white patent open toe sandals completed her ensemble. She carried a basket of varied flowers.

The bridegroom wore a shirt especially designed to fit the same era. It was made by Polly Farley, Kimberly. Diana Hoon, Twin Falls, played and sang "For Bobby" and "On Top of the World" and the wedding song, "Circle Game."

Worthy Coonts, Twin Falls, was flower girl and ring bearer.

The couple repeated wedding vows then placed their rings, reciting their own pledges. A reception followed the wedding ceremony and was held in the same forest area. It featured home-made beef stew made and served by Viola Coonts, Mildred Ealing and Virginia Elledge. Sour dough bread and fresh fruit were also served for the reception to guests gathered around a large campfire. Brenda Colay helped serve appetizers, wedding cake made by Mrs. George Clawson, Twin Falls. The wedding cake was white with a picture of the bride and groom against the sun making a silhouette of the couple. The couple will reside in Eugene, Ore., where they will work and continue their education.

RAYMOND CLARK graduates

Service men

KIMBERLY Navy Academy (Portland) Raymond D. Clark, son of Mrs. Lucille Clark, Kimbrey, has graduated from recent training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

He received nine weeks of instruction in seamanship, small boat training, fire fighting, close order drill, first aid and naval history. He will now report for specialty training or to a ship or shore station for on-the-job training.

TWIN FALLS Navy Academy (Portland) Raymond D. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Doreen M. Nelson, Twin Falls, is aboard the USS Hanger, enroute to the western Pacific. He will serve as part of the Seventh Fleet receiving fleet training and will visit a number of far east countries during the cruise.

Attacked in hotel

NEW YORK (UPI) — A robber armed with a razor Tuesday tied up two California men in their suite at the Plaza Hotel, took more than $1,700 in cash and valuables and walked out wearing a suit belonging to one of the victims, police reported.

It was the second major incident in the hotel involving intruders at the luxurious Central Park South hotel.

On Sunday night, a Connecticut policeman was slashed in the face with a knife and his wife beaten by a man who forced his way into their room.

Police guarding family

DETROIT (UPI) — Police commissioner Phillip G. Tannan has ordered a round-the-clock police guard at the home of a black family that has been harassed since moving into an all-white Detroit neighborhood last year.

He ordered the protection following a visit this weekend to the Northwest Side home of Mrs. Maybelle Richards, 34, and her six children.

The action followed an incident Saturday night in which Mrs. Richards, who had been away from home, returned to find her 12-year-old sons with hammers in their hands. They said someone had tried to break in. I was all right until I came in the dining room and saw my kids holding on to each other with hammers in their hands," Mrs. Richards said. "Then I broke down and cried."

The boys said their mother that someone had tried to kick in a side door and had peered off cardboard covering a window in a door broken in a previous incident. The intruders left after her sons began yelling.

The earlier harassment incidents included garbage thrown on the lawn, the tracks on the grass, broken windows, and threatening letters. Once, the family found a "dead" fish nailed to the garage door.

The four-bedroom Richards home had been under police surveillance because of the attacks.

Mrs. Richards said her immediate neighbors have expressed sympathy for her plight, and she does not blame them.

A few weeks ago, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and several labor unions began posting their own round-the-clock voluntary guards, but withdrew them Friday when police protection was promised for the family. The latest incident occurred less than 24 hours later.

The labor union volunteers also wanted to repair free of charge some $400 worth of damage inflicted by vandals. Mrs. Richards had said she planned to move out, but changed her mind after police surveillance and labor union protection was begun.

Author expelled

MOSCOW (UPI) — Viktor Nekrasov, a Stalin Prize winning author, was expelled from the Union of Soviet Writers for his "disloyal" views, officials said today.

They said Nekrasov, 62, also was questioned the same day by the KGB prosecutor and warned by the Soviet Writers Union he would be expelled from that body unless he changed his views.

County shrinks

MENTONE, Tex. (UPI) — Loving County, the last county organized in Texas, has come on hard times. Since 1940 when its population was at an all-time high of 285, the number of people has dwindled to a current 184.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a very good chance now to find out what others expect from you, especially your close romantic life. You can establish greater rapport than in the past. Improve your surroundings and engage in the artistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Come to a meeting of minds with associates where some important project is concerned. Use extreme caution in travel today.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan your day's duties early in the day and carry through to get right results. Come to an agreement with a stubborn co-worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day for having fun at the recreation that you most enjoy. Show more devotion to loved one. Take time for reading.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day to busy yourself making home a haven of comfort. Some light entertaining in the evening would be enjoyable.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 24) Plan how to be more productive in your line of endeavor. Write to those out-of-town friends who can be helpful to you. Be thankful.

VIRGO (Aug. 25 to Sept. 22) Adding to possessions is easy right now, so get busy early on such, especially where value is concerned. Improve budget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to engage in personal matters and handle them well at this time. The evening is for socializing with friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You love to investigate and this is the time for coming up with the right answers to many enigmas. Evening is for romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contacting friends you like and building firm friendships is wise now. Make sure a business matter is handled well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Showing your capabilities to others can bring excellent results now. Civic work can be handled with much success now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Obtain all the information you want now and don't be against any necessary changes that need to be made. Don't neglect friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Follow your intuitive faculties now since they are particularly accurate and can help you in your activities. Be charming.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a fine personality and others will want to help, even spoil your progeny, so be sure to teach the habit of work so that the price paid for favors will not be high and the fine promise in this chart will come to fruition instead of dying on the vine. Give good spiritual training.

"The Stars imply, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

A sociology scholar contends the best way to find out what most of people buy what is not to ask them questions, but rather to examine their garbage. For instance, it's the persons who earn the lowest wages that eat the most vitamins. The garbage analysts have proved that.

Ask any 10 people to identify the Merchant of Venice. And nine will say, Shylock. Try it. Antonio was.

A Montana hunter reports he gets his buck every year, simply by buying a white handkerchief to a low limit, then setting the deer's own curiosity entice it into rifle range.

QUESTIONS FROM CLIENTS

Q. "Where does the Post-Exchange system of the military rank-in-size among this country's department-store chains?"

A. It's third. Right behind Sears Roebuck and C. Penney.

Q. "Don't all real fairy tales begin with 'Once upon a time'?"

A. No, my dear, sometimes they start out with 'I've been detained at the office, honey.'

Q. "What's a 'monking'?"

A. A feminine bathing suit with a bikini-type bottom but no top. It's said to be growing in popularity at the resorts in Northern Europe.

Client asks where the U. S. Forestry Service's smoke-jumpers are trained. Up in Missoula, Mont.-Callis-to-mind old Henry Heidemann's definition of a smokejumper. He's one of them fire fighters who climbs down trees he never climb up.

FAULTS

No. 4 on that list of faults, which wives accuse their husbands of, is "too bossy." No. 4 on that list of faults, which husbands accuse their wives of, is "talks too much."

But it was the content of an experienced witness at a Senate Committee hearing on gambling.

The skin that tends to show age first and most is on the throat. You know that, too! Maybe you didn't know the skin that tends to show age last and least (on the small of the back).

FIGHTING FULL EMPLOYMENT

Oil firms pay relatively small US federal taxes

(c) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — The nation's six major multinational oil companies in 1973 reported they paid worldwide taxes of $25.4 billion on their operations.

But they paid only $642 million in domestic federal income taxes. The companies' gross revenues totaled nearly $50 billion for the year and net profits of $6.7 billion.

Under present United States tax law, the oil companies may deduct taxes paid abroad from their domestic tax burden. This accounts mostly for the relatively small amount of federal income tax paid by the companies. The oil-depletion allowance (which may be abolished in this session of Congress) and intangible drilling costs also reduce domestic taxes.

As a consequence of this tax structure, Exxon Corporation last year had a profit of $2.44 billion on its worldwide operations, which reached a volume of $22.5 billion over the 12-month period. The company paid $333 million in domestic income tax, it reported.

This showing of relatively low federal income taxes was most pronounced among oil companies with extensive international operations, such as the six biggest: Exxon, Mobil, Texaco, Gulf, Standard Oil of California and Standard Oil (Indiana).

Texaco, third in size, had a profit of $1.3 billion on total revenues of $11.8 billion in 1973. But its U.S. income tax bill was $30 million currently plus $46 million deferred for later payment.

Gulf Oil Corporation, fourth largest, had a profit of $80 million last year on total revenues of $10 billion. Domestic sales alone reached $4.62 billion in 1973. But U.S. income tax was $23 million for the year.

Oil companies say that, although their federal income tax burden is small in relation to worldwide earnings, even to domestic operations, their total tax burden is comparable to those of other industries.

While Standard Oil of California paid only $41.5 million in federal income tax, the company reported foreign income taxes of $300 million. And various other taxes brought the total tax burden to $1.9 billion.

Standard, the nation's fifth largest oil company, had a profit last year of $94.6 million on total revenues of $8.9 billion. Although Exxon's domestic income tax was just $333 million last year, it said that its total income-tax bill was $3.56 billion and that all taxes came to $10.6 billion.

The Mobil Corporation reported worldwide taxes of $4.5 billion for 1973, although its federal income tax was just $50.4 million.

Standard Oil (Indiana) said its total taxes were $1.4 billion while the federal income tax was $165 million. Its sales and revenues totaled $5.5 billion last year. Oil executives hesitate to compare tax burdens of various oil companies because different companies have different mixtures of operations, including domestic and overseas ventures in petroleum, natural gas, chemicals and other sectors. And overseas tax rates vary by country and by activity.

Making waves

Plane shot accidentally

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — A heat-seeking missile accidentally shot down a Navy A4 Jet Monday during training exercises off Jacksonville, Fla., but the pilot ejected safely, according to a Navy spokesman here.

The pilot, Lt. Robert E. Rhode, was fished out of the water by a helicopter and taken aboard the aircraft carrier Independence after the Monday evening crash.

Ex-POW's comment on Patty

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's self-declared membership in the Symbionese Liberation Army is unconvincing, according to a former prisoner of war.

"I would never believe any statement anybody made in captivity," said Capt. Harry Jenkins, held 7 1/2 years as a prisoner. "I would take it with a grain of salt."

"If she had truly gone over to their side, there would have been some public statement. She would have gone home to her parents or something like that."

Jenkins said Monday he found captors could use a variety of techniques to force their captives to act against their will.

"I assume she was taken against her will. I don't find it surprising they could make her say things and do things she wouldn't ordinarily do."

Another ex-POW, Cmdr. William R. Stark of Coronado, suggested that, unlike military prisoners, Miss Hearst's surprise abduction last Feb. 4 made her more vulnerable to shock.

"I got over there (Vietnam) all by myself," said Stark, a Navy officer held nearly six years by the North Vietnamese. "I volunteered. Patty Hearst hadn't voluntarily started off her existence in a confrontation with these people."

Stark also noted that the S.L.A.'s apparent good treatment of the newspaper heiress further disarmed her.
